The Typical Restaurant GUIDE

THE NEW TASTE OF TRADITION

Globalisation is not a hit, at least not as far as food is concerned.

That is why FIPE – The Italian Federation of Commercial Concerns – and ARSIAL – The Regional Agency for the Development and Innovation of Agriculture in Lazio – have decided to promote a network of restaurants where typical Roman cooking is once again the star of the show.

Ristorante Tipico (Typical Restaurant) means making the most of traditional cooking, promoting the regional gastronomic culture and bringing Roman flavours back onto our tables.

All of this is “the new taste of tradition”!

58 restaurants in Rome and the surrounding areas already sport the Ristorante Tipico-Cucina Romana (Typical Restaurant-Roman Cooking) label!

All of the dishes on the typical menu form part of Rome’s gastronomic tradition and can boast at least 25 years of history.

That is why whoever goes into a restaurant bearing the T of Typical can be sure of eating traditional Roman cooking.

In this way customers have the chance to rediscover culinary traditions which risk being forgotten with today’s lifestyles.

The wine list features white, red and desert wines to be tasted and to accompany traditional Roman flavours and includes an extensive selection of DOC and IGT wines from the Lazio region.

Roman cuisine restaurants have been certified by an institute which attests the menu’s conformity with Typical Restaurant characteristics.
